ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S EX
PARTE* APPLICATION FOR A
TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER; ORDER TO PLAINTIFF TO SHOW CAUSE WHY THIS CASE
SHOULD NOT BE DISMISSED FOR FAILURE TO STATE A
COGNIZABLE CLAIM

21
22 I. INTRODUCTION
23

24 Simultaneously with the filing of his Complaint, Plaintiff Laurack D. Bray moves
25 ex parte for the issuance of a temporary restraining order and for an order to show cause
26 why a preliminary injunction should not be granted. Mr. Bray's application seeks, inter
27 alia, the repossession of property located at 1019 E. Santa Clara St., Ventura, California
28

1 (the “Subject Property”). (Dkt. No. 3.) For the reasons discussed below, Mr. Bray’s ex
2 parte application is DENIED.

3 4 II. BACKGROUND

6 On July 3, 2012, Mr. Bray¹ brought suit against twenty-one federal and state
7 defendants, including the United States of America, the Department of Justice, Attorney
8 General Eric Holder, and the United States Attorney for the Central District of California,
9 André Birotte. (See Dkt. No. 5 [Complaint].) Mr. Bray’s Complaint alleges that he has 10 been the victim of racial discrimination during judicial proceedings, and suffered similar 11 discrimination during his attempts to see his claims investigated. (Compl. ¶¶ 1–3.) In 12 particular, Mr. Bray alleges that during a 2003 unlawful detainer action filed against him,
13 the Ventura County Superior Court judge presiding over his trial answered a jury
14 question in way that caused a jury verdict against him. (Id. ¶ 6.) As a result of this 15 verdict, Mr. Bray alleges that he was wrongfully evicted from his home-law office. (Id.)
16 Subsequently, Mr. Bray requested that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the United 17 States Attorney’s Office for the Central District of California (“USAO”) investigate and 18 prosecute his claims of racial discrimination. (Id. ¶ 8.) The USAO declined to proceed
19 with a case based on Mr. Bray’s claims, and informed him that it “does not conduct
20 investigations.” (Id. Exh 1–1A) (emphasis in original.)

21
22 Based on these allegations, Mr. Bray asserts eight causes of action for violation of 23 42 U.S.C. §§ 1981, 1982, and 1985, the Fifth Amendment, the Fourth Amendment, the 24 Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, the Privacy Act, the Federal Tort Claims Act, and 25 the Fourteenth Amendment. (See Compl.) On July 2, 2012, Mr. Bray filed the instant ex
26

27 ¹ While Mr. Bray’s Complaint is captioned “Laurack D. Bray, and on behalf of Conrad Murray and 28 Oscar Grant, deceased, and other similarly-situated black male professionals/semi-professionals”, the Complaint does not contain any class allegations.

1 parte application. Mr. Bray’s application seeks an order (1) restraining the Defendants
2 from selling, leasing, renting, passing, or transferring the Subject Property, (2)
3 dispossessing anyone currently possessing the Subject Property, (3) permitting Mr. Bray
4 to take immediate control of the Subject Property, (4) requiring Defendants to continue to 5 maintain the Subject Property pending a final decision in this action, and (5) requiring
6 Defendants to show cause why the Court should not issue a preliminary injunction. (Pl.’s
7 App. at 1–2.)

8 9 II. ANALYSIS

10
11 The standard for issuing a TRO is “substantially identical” to that for issuing a 12 preliminary injunction. Stuhlbarg Int’l Sales Co. v. John D. Brush & Co., 240 F.3d 832, 13 839 n.7 (9th Cir. 2001). “ ‘A plaintiff seeking a [TRO] must establish that he is likely to 14 succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of 15 preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in 16 the public interest.’ ” Am. Trucking Ass’ns, Inc. v. City of L.A., 559 F.3d 1046, 1052 (9th
17 Cir. 2009) (quoting Winter v. Nat’l Res. Def. Council, Inc., 129 S.Ct. 365, 374 (2008)).
18 Like a preliminary injunction, a TRO is an extraordinary and drastic remedy that may 19 only be awarded upon a clear showing that the moving party is entitled to relief. See 20 Mazurek v. Armstrong, 520 U.S. 968, 972 (1997).

21
22 Mr. Bray has not made a clear showing that he is entitled to the extraordinary 23 remedies he seeks because his ex parte application and exhibits fall far short of 24 demonstrating a likelihood of success on the merits. Mr. Bray’s Complaint fails to meet
25 the basic pleading requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a) to provide a short
26 and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief. Mr. Bray’s 27 thirty-four page Complaint, with eight claims, against twenty-one different defendants, is 28 replete with allegations of racial discrimination, and other alleged constitutional

1 violations. But rather than being a short and plain statement of Mr. Bray's alleged injury,
2 the Complaint is a "shotgun pleading" that primarily contains legal conclusions. With so
3 many claims, leveled against so many defendants, Mr. Bray's Complaint makes it
4 exceedingly difficult for the Court to determine the merit of his allegations. And Mr.
5 Bray's ex parte application fails to provide any clarity. With such conclusory, confusing,
6 and redundant allegations, the Court cannot conclude that Mr. Bray has demonstrated a 7 likelihood of success on the merits of any of his claims.

9 Mr. Bray has also failed to demonstrate that he will suffer irreparable harm if the 10 requested relief is not granted. Plaintiff alleges that after his eviction from the Subject
11 Property in 2003, he has been unable to obtain another home or office. (See Pl.'s App. at 12 6.) Indeed, Mr. Bray states that the "main reason for the temporary restraining order is to 13 assist Plaintiff in re-gaining possession or re-possessing the premises located at 1019 E.
14 Santa Clara Street, Ventura, CA" (Id.) But Mr. Bray has not suggested any basis on 15 which the successful resolution of his claims would entitle him to the possession of 16 property he last rented in 2003.² Moreover, Mr. Bray has not alleged how he will be 17 irreparably harmed by not immediately regaining possession of a property he rented as 18 far back as 2003. Without more, Mr. Bray has failed to demonstrate the irreparable harm
19 necessary for the relief he seeks.

20 21 III. CONCLUSION

23 For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Bray's ex parte application is DENIED. In light of 24 the deficiencies in his Complaint, the Court ORDERS Mr. Bray to show cause why this

25
26 ² Mr. Bray has also not alleged how the Defendants are in a position to return the Subject Property to 27 him. While Mr. Bray does allege that the Subject Property is currently under the stewardship of a
28 trustee, he does not allege that Defendants are the trustee or are somehow in an ownership position over the Subject Property. (See Pl.'s App. 7–8.) In fact, Mr. Bray alleges that he does "not know the state of the ownership of the property, other than a trustee, according to the assessor's office." (Id. at 8.)

1 action should not be dismissed for failure to state a cognizable claim. Mr. Bray must file
2 a written opposition to this order to show cause by August 28, 2012. Defendants shall
3 file a response, if any, by September 4, 2012. The matter will stand submitted upon 4 receipt of all the papers.
